North of the Somme, French troops made progress on the Malassise ridge, at the head of his harassed troops. South of the river they also ejected German troops who had recaptured a portion of Ablaincourt.

Anglo-French attacks on the Somme front, in northern France, have been repulsed by the troops of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, according to Berlin, which records the capture by Saxon regiments of a portion of Ambos wood north of Chaulnes, south of the Somme. More than 600 prisoners were taken by the Germans. French official statement of tonight follows:

"South of the Somme we made two attacks which succeeded brilliantly. One of them, to the east of Belloy-En-Santerre, put us in possession of the German first line on a front of more than twe kilometers. The other placed us in possession of the Hamlet of Genermont and the sugar refinery 1.200 meters northeast of Ablaincourt. We took a large number of prisoners. Up to the present time $60 unwounded prisoners, including seventeen officers, have been passed back.

"The Somme battle continues. A repetition of the hostile attacks north of the Somme on a large front, as on October 12, failed before our curtain of fire. Between the Ancre and Morval only one strong partial attack near Gueudecourt developed completely, but it was defeated. Attacks launched from the line of Morval-Bouchavesness resulted almost without exception in heavy hand-to-hand fighting, in which the French infantry was everywhere defeated. In an informal memorandum, sub-mitted some time ago, Great Britain pointed out at length the changes made in censorship methods to expedite mail examination. These changes are only referred to briefly in the present com

The note is nearly 5,000 words in length. It argues that the United States and the allies agree that the postal union convention does not apply and that postal packages may be examined to see if they contain contrabrand. That being so, the note contends it is necessary to open postal bags and examination cannot take place at sea without delay and inconvenience.

The nominee assailed the Adamson bill as "a gold brick" handed to labor. This declaration was made before an audience of railroad employes who crowded around his car at Wymore, an unscheduled stop, where the train changed engines.

At Falls City, Beatrice, Fairbury, Fairmount, York and here tonight Mr. Hughes addressed audiences which frequently interrupted him to applaud. In his speech here the nominee went into detail on his views with respect to the international considerations of peace and the organization of peace. As at Fairbury, he replied to the charge that a vote for him meant a vote for war.

"I have heard it said since I came into Nebraska," Mr. Hughes said, "that somebody has been going through the state saying that a vote for me meant a vote for war.
